3% Pay Roll Tax for Job Insurance Proposed by U. S.

90% Refund Granted Employers Subscribing to State Plans

PENSION PEAK $30

Sliding Scale of Pay Roll Tax and Benefits Is Proposed

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Both the administration and congress Friday sped forward the president's immense work relief and security program.

The first house hearings on the social bill are set for Monday. The senate debated the World Court issue, and the house the various District of Columbia money items.

Job and Pension Plans WASHINGTON—(AP)—With a presidential address set out Thursday to enact a five-phase program to help the jobless, the aged, mothers and their children and closer to safeguard health.

In one bundle, President Roosevelt sent to congress a message outlining what he thought was necessary to establish "sound means toward a greater future economic security of the American people," and a report pointing out the "conclusions reached" in his study by a group of experts in the most sweeping effort in history to provide against the "hazards" of life.

Omnibus bills were brought forward by Senator Wagner, Democrat, New York, and Representative Lewis, Democrat, Maryland, immediately.

Principal Provisions They provided for unemployment insurance borne by a three per cent pay roll tax; three-point old age pension for those over 65, at the center of which would be employer-employee contributions through pay roll taxes; joint federal-state aid for mothers, dependent and crippled children; a broadening of public health service with a further study of health insurance possibilities, and a tie-up between unemployment insurance and job assurance through public works.

The government would contribute more than $20,000,000 the first year and $217,000,000 for several succeeding years. Dissatisfaction with these figures was expressed in both official and congressional quarters, however, and there were indications they would be changed.

At the same time, the administration laid plans for drawing up sample bills to be carried before state legislatures to point them the way to co-operate with the federal government. President Roosevelt asked for prompt action by congress and said all state legislatures were in session or would meet soon. To meet this request, the House Ways and Means Committee arranged to sidetrack bonus bills and take up the social security program. Since the measure involves taxation, the house must net first.

The bill introduced encompassed the entire plan. For old age insurance they followed the three-pronged attack envisaged by the president. For those who are now old, they proposed:

Joint federal-state contributions to provide for those who are over 65, monthly payments ranging up to $30 a month.

A $50,000,000 appropriation for 1935

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

Being called the apple of his eye is an affectionate appellation.

Partisans Will View the Result with Satisfaction or Disappointment, depending on how their interest stood in the campaign.

But as a newspaper which was strictly neutral in the congressional race we can point out to you that the importance of which man was to be elected long ago vanished before the importance of maintaining the integrity of the ballot.

It turns out to be an election glorious for Mr. Kitchens and with little honor for Mr. Parks and with little honor for the Circuit Judge Patrick Henry, presiding at the contest at Hamburg, found such evidence of bought, coerced and otherwise illegal votes that he caused 511 to be struck off the record in Hempstead county alone!

Hempstead polled in the August 28th run-off primary a total of 3,794 votes. Judge Henry found one-seventh of that total to be fraudulent!

I say that an election in which such fraud is apparent is no election at all. X X X

This newspaper debates public issues—not personalities. It supports a cause—not an individual candidate.

And if there ever was a time when we needed to be fair-minded enough to put away campaign tactics for a common cause it is now—when the very institution of an honest ballot is at stake.

I am one of those who imagine an honest ballot to be necessary for Democratic self-government.

I am one of those who imagine an honest ballot to be necessary so that when citizens avail themselves of the time-honored privilege of changing their mind between one election and the next, it may go down in the record just as they wrote it.

Anything else is a secret and corrupt dictatorship. X X X

I can write about this matter with feeling, for the reason that I never uttered a word about either Mr. Parks or Mr. Kitchens in their two campaigns—and I can summarize both the election and the contest by saying that in the long run the people aren't going to have much use for either of them, judging from what a court has uncovered concerning their election bargaining.

The next thing that Hempstead citizens are going to study is the election machinery of their own county.

There'll be more to say about that before another election.

And in view of the fact that one-seventh of the votes in the last election were marked null and void by a court of authority, what they are going to say will be plenty.

This much of the battle for good government belongs right here at home—and I wouldn't give you a dime for a battle that didn't begin right here at home.

Fools and demagogues rush off to foreign wars.

Honest citizens do their fighting at home.

1 1/2 Million Must Be Raised by State

Sales Tax Appears Only Hope of Meeting U. S. Relief Ultimatum

LITTLE ROCK—Arkansas is expected to raise $1,500,000 as a "minimum amount" for unemployment relief in 1935, as a condition of further grants by the federal government, beginning March 1, Harry L. Hopkins, national relief administrator, telegraphed Governor Futrell Thursday.

There is three times the amount contributed by state and local governments of Arkansas in the last 21 months. The implication of the message was that Arkansas may not expect federal grants for unemployment relief after March 1 until it "makes available its fair share of the cost."

The message read: "During the 21 months ending September 30, 1934, the federal government has contributed $18,087,567 toward the financing of unemployment relief in Arkansas, exclusive of expenditures by the CWA.

"The state government of Arkansas has contributed $107,960, and the local governments $189,318, largely for materials on work projects.

"As a condition of further grants to Arkansas, the federal government requires that Arkansas make available its fair share of the cost of unemployment relief. I regard $1,500,000 the minimum amount which Arkansas should make available from state and local funds as its annual share."

Governor Futrell expressed grave doubts that the state will be able to provide its share of such a fund, "unless," he added, "it can be done with the sales tax."

"I am convinced in my own mind that the sales tax is unconstitutional," (Continued on page five)

Legislature Goes Into Recess Until Next Monday at 2

Solons Haven't Yet Solved Problem Where Pay Is Coming From

SAY THEY NEED IT

House Refuses to Use $2,800 Belonging to School Fund

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—The house worked alone Friday while the senate was in week-end recess, but its efforts resulted only in the introduction of 11 bills before it too recessed until 2 o'clock next Monday afternoon.

A salary bill was introduced but turned down by the house because it attempted to take $2,800 from the common school fund, which was the same subject that sent the senate into a snarl two days ago.

The house decided to await the senate bill Monday, although many members expressed the need of immediate pay.

The bills introduced Friday included one to regulate narcotics, and another to tax bank deposits 3 mills.

Propose Single House

LITTLE ROCK—Arkansas would have a unicameral or one-house legislative system if a constitutional amendment proposed in the House of Representatives Thursday were approved by the people at a general election. It would be composed of only 35 members and the lieutenant governor would be the presiding officer.

Other measures of more than usual importance introduced in the house Thursday included:

The "Hot Springs racing bill," a workmen's compensation bill, a measure providing for legalizing the sale of liquor, one to regulate paroles of state convicts, another to create a state planning board, a bill providing for the appointment of insolvent bank receivers by chancery courts instead of the state bank commissioner and another substituting township boards for county boards of equalization.

Proposes Amendment

The resolution providing for the unicameral legislature amendment was introduced by Campbell of Garland. The expenses of the body would be limited to $100,000 annually, including salaries and mileage of its members, employees "and all other expenses of any character whatsoever." The assembly would select one of its members as speaker who would be pro tempore presiding officer and act as governor in case of the death or disqualification of the governor and lieutenant governor.

Bills passed by the assembly but vetoed by the governor could be passed over the veto by a majority of the assembly. After convening in regular session the legislature could recess from time to time, but adjournment sine die could not be taken sooner than six months before the next regular session.

Liquor Control Board

The so-called "whisky bill" was offered by Christian of Yell. It provides for the creation of the office of state liquor commissioner, and the commissioner, governor, secretary of state, treasurer, auditor and attorney general would constitute the Liquor Control Board. The revenue would be for the benefit of the state Tuberculosis Sanatorium and the State hospital.

The bill would authorize the manufacture and sale of all alcoholic wines, rum, gin, whisky, ale, porter, stout, brandy and beer. Restaurants, hotels, drug stores, grocery stores and bonded taverns would be permitted to retail the beverage. Manufacturers would be required to pay a tax of 40 cents a gallon except on beer, the tax on which would be 25 cents a gallon. Retailers would be taxed $2.500 annually and be required to post bond of $20,000.

Tightening State Parole

Under a bill by Berry of Marion, the state parole law would be "tightened up considerably." Persons serving terms in the penitentiary on pleas of guilty would not be eligible to parole until after they had served half their sentences, and then only after the FLEMINGTON, N. J.—(AP)—Anna Hauptmann's nerve broke Friday at the trial of her husband for life. She said a witness was lying.

Mrs. Ella Auchenchach, a Hauptmann neighbor, told the court that Mrs. Hauptmann came to her two days after the kidnaping and said Bruno had been on a trip.

Mrs. Auchenchach also said Hauptmann limped when going down the steps after returning from the trip.

His Nerve Cracks

FLEMINGTON, N. J.—(AP)—Bruno Hauptmann's nerve cracked at last Thursday.

Maddened by Federal Agent Thomas H. Sisk's description of the carpenter's hiding place for thousands in Lindbergh ransom bills, he leaped to his feet.

"Mister, mister, you stop lying! You are telling a story!" he shouted, shaking his finger.

"One moment," commanded Justice Thomas W. Trenchard. "Let me suggest to the defendant that he keep quiet. If he has any observations to make, let him make them quietly through counsel."

Trembling, his jaws clenched, Hauptmann was pulled back into his chair by guards. A deep pallor spread over the carpenter's face. He muttered curses under his breath at the witness: "He's cracking now," said County Prosecutor Anthony M. Hawk.

Jurors Not Perturbed

Mrs. Hauptmann sat through it all with only a slight smile crossing her face. The jurors took the outburst quietly, staring curiously at Hauptmann after the court quiet was restored.

Hauptmann's face was pale as Sisk started back at him coldly without any surprise in his face.

Justice Trenchard rapped sharply for order and Sisk continued. The crowd which had risen to its feet as the defendant interrupted the proceedings settled back.

"You will get your opportunity to make your statement at the proper time," Justice Trenchard said as the German ex-convict sat with his jaws clenched and his body trembling.

The outburst was Bruno's first open display of the tension that has been gathering in his pale face for the 12 days of his trial for murder of the Lindbergh baby.

Tells Of Finding Money

Agent Sisk was relating how officers found more than $14,000 of the ransom money in Hauptmann's Bronx home and garage last September. Some of the bills were in the garage, woodwork, but Sisk told of an empty crack he found buried beneath the floor. There was no money in it, but Sisk related:

"We questioned Hauptmann as to that just. He denied knowing anything about it, but the next day when we questioned him he admitted that he had that money in there three weeks before he was arrested."

"In the jug?" asked Attorney General David T. Wilentz.

"In that jug," replied Sisk.

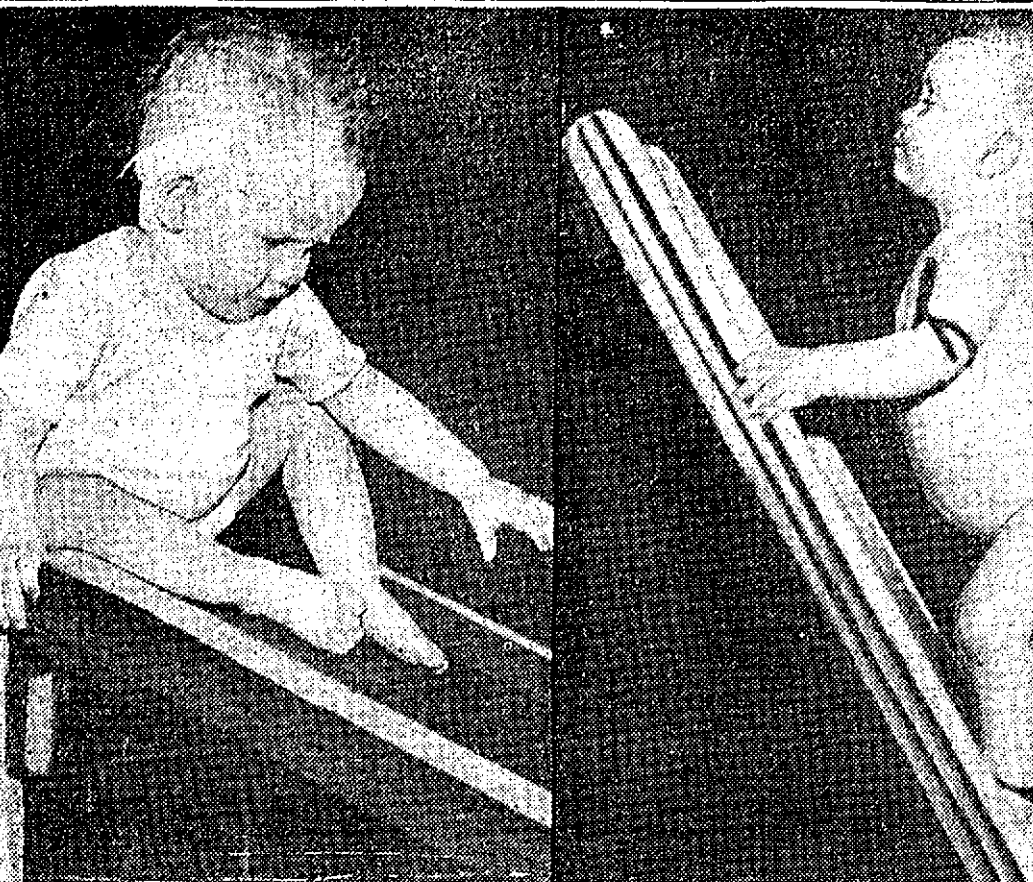

A few feet away, Hauptmann jumped from his chair and shouted the command to "stop lying." His face was pale, his accent harsh and guttural.

Lindbergh Cool

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, whose son Hauptmann is accused of stealing and killing, remained one of the calmest persons in the courtroom. In the front of the courtroom state troopers, detectives and federal agents, present to testify, moved instinctively forward. But there was no need for them.

Sisk was the second federal agent to testify about the tracing of the ransom notes to Hauptmann, his arrest and recovery from his garage of a large amount of the ransom money. Bruno's defenders fought every step of the way as the prosecution sought to show that the treacherous ransom bills figuratively burned a hole in the carpenter's pocket.

What training can do to develop a baby was scientifically demonstrated at the annual meeting of the Normal Child Development Clinic in New York City with the assistance of Florie and Margie, 15-month-old twin sisters. Florie has been carefully trained, while Margie has been left to her own devices in her crib. The pictures contrast the result—untrained Margie (left) refuses to slip down a slide, while Florie (right) not only slides down, but climbs up the 60 degree incline readily.

Morley to Leave Local Ice Plant

Announcement Made at Rotary Club—Program on Scouting Given

Farewell remarks of Herbert Morley, who in two weeks will be succeeded as manager of the Community Ice & Produce Co. by Travis Steele, of Paris, Texas, were heard by Hope Rotary club Friday noon at Hotel Barlow.

Also appearing on the program were the Rev. George F. X. Strassner, of Hope, district Boy Scout official, and young Edward Lester, member of local Scout troop No. 58, sponsored by the Rotary club.

Mr. Morley, who has just returned from the convention of the Southwestern Ice Manufacturers association at Galveston, Texas, will leave for Morrilton, Ark., in two weeks, to assume management of a larger plant.

He urged the Rotarians to push the meat-uring program which was launched last fall by the State Extension Service in co-operation with the Community Ice & Produce Co., asserting that it meant dollars and cents to the farmer population in the Hope trade area.

Concluding, he said: "I heard when I first came to Hope that my assignment was to 'break' another local ice plant—after which the Community plant would be closed down. I am glad that I have been permitted to stay here long enough to correct that false story. And I want to say that, having lived all my life in Arkansas, I have always heard that Hope was the most pleasant city in the state in which to live—I have had the pleasure of living here, and I finally go away knowing that what other folks say about Hope is indeed true."

The program on scouting was presented by A. B. Patton.

The Rev. Mr. Strassner showed that local scouting had grown in the last year from five troops of 92 boys to seven troops of 141 scouts. The Tex. Ark district, he said, has grown from a membership of 68 scouts in 1919 to 1,321 at present.

Young Lester recited the Scout oath and gave a brief description of the Scout's work which won applause from the Rotarians.

Plea Comes Unexpectedly Just as the Jury Is Completed

BATESVILLE, Ark.—(AP)—Attorneys for Robert Rose Friday entered on his behalf a plea of guilty after the jury had been completed in less than an hour to hear his trial on a first degree murder charge growing out of the slaying of Deputy Sheriff Everett Wheeler early this month.

The prosecution had said the state's evidence would be brief in an attempt to close the trial by Friday night.

The jury was to decide if Rose would be sentenced to death or life imprisonment.

State Modifies Law on Sureties

Paves Way for Bonding State Treasurer—Counties Forgotten

LITTLE ROCK—Passage of emergency legislation by the house Thursday overcame the reluctance of bonding companies to provide sureties for public officials under existing Arkansas laws to the extent that more than half of the required $200,000 bond for Earl Page, state treasurer, had been pledged by various companies, and the remainder seemed assured.

Mr. Page, however, to make sure of qualifying as state treasurer before January 25, the constitutional limit, continued his move to execute a $800,000 personal bond.

"Hundreds of my friends, hearing of my dilemma, have rushed to my assistance with offers to sign a personal bond for me," he said. "Already I have the signatures of more than a dozen men who have a net worth equal to a sixth of the required bond and these signatures were volunteered by friends who came either to my home or my office to tender their aid."

"I am leaving for various points over the state to secure signatures of my best of friends on my personal bond. My friends may rest assured that I will make the required bond in ample time to meet the law's requirements."

The measure passed by the house was sent immediately to the senate where it was read twice and referred to a committee, but since the senate adjourned Thursday until Monday, no action can be taken until next week.

Contest Ends With Defeat of Man Congress Has Seated

HAMBURG, Ark.—(AP)—Upsetting the official certification of the Democratic committee Circuit Judge Patrick Henry ruled here late Friday afternoon that Wade Kitchens, had won the Seventh district nomination for congress last August rather than Tilman B. Parks who has since been seated by the congress for the new term.

Judge Henry completed the election contest by certifying that Kitchens won by 13 votes.

He gave the final count as: Kitchens 13,625. Parks 13,612.

511 Illegal Votes Here

HAMBURG, Ark.—It seemed certain Thursday night that the long-drawn contest between Congressman Tilman B. Parks of Camden and Wade Kitchens of Magnolia over the Democratic nomination for congress from the Seventh district will be decided, so far as circuit court here is concerned Friday.

Judge Patrick Henry, who has made every possible effort to expedite the case, told friends outside court Thursday: "I'm going to shoot something tomorrow. It may be 2 o'clock Saturday morning but I must dispose of these eggs and get it out of the way."

As the result of Thursday's development in court, Kitchens lost 363 and Parks lost 189, a clear gain of 215 for the congressman. This increased Parks' lead to about 300. It is conceded that he will make additional gains in Chicot county Friday.

However, this only emphasized the fact that the ultimate result, so far as this court is concerned, will depend on Judge Henry's ruling on Kitchens' motion that the votes of the Crossett and Parkdale precincts of Ashley county be thrown out.

Should the request be granted, Kitchens virtually is assured of a ruling from the court to the effect that he legally was nominated in the Democratic run-off primary last August.

If the request is denied, Parks' lead will not be much changed from that certified by the different county central committees.

Thursday's developments: In the Stephenson schoolhouse precinct in Hempstead county, where Parks had charged that 62 negroes had voted for Kitchens, ballots of 56 negroes were found and thrown out. Of these 36 had voted for Kitchens and 20 for Parks. In this precinct, a total of 132 illegal votes were thrown out with 97 for Kitchens and 35 for Parks.

In the 11 precincts of Hempstead county where votes had been challenged, 511 votes were thrown out as illegal. Of these 363 were for Kitchens and 148 for Parks.

In Nevada county, the court sustained challenges to 122 votes with Kitchens losing 86 and Parks 36.

In Kitchens' home county of Columbia he lost 56 votes and Parks lost 19.

In Chicot county, challenges to 125 votes have been sustained and these ballots are being segregated Thursday night. It is said that they will be ready for counting Friday.

The absentee ballots of Ouchita county, which Kitchens has attacked will be inspected Friday. This virtually will conclude the case except for several rulings on legal points by Judge Henry and his all-important ruling on the Crossett and Parkdale ballots.

NEW ORLEANS—(AP)—Cotton Friday opened a shade firmer. Liver-pool cables came in better than due and sterling was steady. There were overnight buying orders in the market at the start and first trades showed gains of three to four points.

Futures eased off four to five points soon after the opening owing to profit taking by satisfied longs and May traded down to 12.58, July to 12.60, and October to 12.49, or net unchanged to two points down compared with Thursday's close.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady, two to four higher or better Liverpool cables and foreign buying. January 12.49; March 12.58; May 12.64; July 12.66; October 12.57; December 12.3.

Ten Million Believed Victims of Ringworm

Most common of skin diseases today probably is ringworm infection, which produces the so-called athlete's foot. It is said that ten million people in this country suffer from this condition.

Many types of organisms are included under the ringworm classification. The condition usually is found between the toes and usually is developed from walking barefoot on the floors of gymnasiums, swimming pools and locker rooms. It is particularly prevalent in these days among high school and college students.

The first symptoms is itching and scaling between the toes. Gradually, if the condition gets worse, the skin cracks and small blisters develop. The condition may spread from the feet to the thighs, between the buttocks and under the arms. Rarely does it appear on the face or scalp of grownups.

There are many different ways in which this malady can be treated, including antiseptics, the use of the X-ray and various types of ointments. However, you should be certain that the medicines penetrate suitably, so that it may be desirable to soak the feet a long time in hot water before applying the ointments.

Among the most common diseases affecting the skin is that with the ordinary pus germ. This produces eruptions which spread rapidly from one child to another, particularly when a common towel is used.

The disease is called impetigo. If a child develops this condition, he should be separated from other children and quite certainly should use separate washing and drying materials.

Generally the condition may be controlled, if seen early, by washing the eruptions away with warm water and soap, and then applying suitable antiseptic ointment.

Another common condition is the so-called seven-year itch, also called Cuban itch and scabies. It is caused by a tiny parasite which burrows into the skin and lays its eggs.

At night it comes to the surface of the body when it gets warm under the bed clothes and the itching begins. The person who itches rubs and scratches, which tends to spread the condition.

An old market woman discovered years ago, or at least reminded her doctor, that sulphur will get rid of this itch. A hot bath is taken and all the bed clothes and night clothes are changed. Then for four successive nights ointment containing sulphur is used.

The same bed clothing and the same underclothing should be used during this period. On the fifth morning a cleansing bath with good pure soap is taken. This will rid the body of the dead itch mites and stop the scabies.

All the clothing and bed sheets which have been used during the previous period should be thoroughly boiled to relieve them of their content of infection.

How a Great Liner Sped Into Disaster—This Novel Depicts Officers on Ship Like Titanic

When a great liner like the Titanic sets out to prove that it is the finest, fastest, and safest ship afloat and runs into an iceberg and goes down in mid-Atlantic—what goes on in the minds of its officers before and during the final catastrophe?

It is a fascinating subject for speculation; and Edouard Peisson gives us his ideas on it in a tense novel, "Outward Bound From Liverpool."

He shows us a gigantic new liner, largest and fastest on earth, making her maiden run across the Atlantic. Her captain is under orders to set a new speed record "at all costs"; so, although fog veils the waters and icebergs are reported in his path, he drives the ship along at a 28-knot clip, knowing full well that it is likely dangerous to do so.

At last comes disaster. The ship grazes an iceberg, structural faults de-

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Glorifying Yourself
Acquiring An Eye for Beauty—It Requires Artificial Shadow

Eye makeup for evening never has been more widely used than it is this winter. At the smartest places the majority of fashionably-dressed women wear eyeshadow and mascara to enlarge and enhance the appearance of their eyes.

Remember that eyeshadow is a cosmetic which must be applied sparingly and carefully. If you put on too much, you'll look unnatural and decidedly not well groomed. Never put eyeshadow under your eyes. It should be kept on the upper lids. Blend it on before you use face powder. If you have trouble getting it on smoothly, brush your forefinger across a bit of cleansing cream, touch your lids lightly with the finger and then put on the shadow.

Effful of Beauty
There is no set rule for the color of eyeshadow one should use. Some brunettes look lovely with brown. Others find that purple, deep blue and even dark green flatters them. Generally speaking, green and blue are best for blondes and redheads. However, I know a stunning auburn-haired artist who achieves a striking effect with gray.

Brown mascara goes well with the average woman's coloring. Of course, there are true brunettes who can wear black or dark blue. And, speaking of blue, it certainly gives the eyes a sparkling that is charming.

Put mascara on after you have powdered. Apply it lavishly on the upper lashes and very lightly on the lower ones, making sure the little hairs don't stick together and that there are no beads of the cosmetic left on to show.

NEXT: A new cream.

When Baby Starts to Do His Tricks.

The New Year seems to be rather bound up with the arrival of babies, so it seems timely to look over some statistics and tell parents just about what to expect of the new arrival.

Some difference is to be expected naturally. All babies do not develop alike according to standardized pattern, but the following figures will correspond pretty closely to the little tricks expected of the latest comer:

2 to 3 weeks—eyes held fixed on stationary objects.

3 to 4 weeks—eyes turned back and forth from one object to another.

4 to 5 weeks—eyes follow slowly a moving object or person.

Making Attempts at Sitting Up

7 to 8 weeks—baby can see at a greater distance.

1st week—Baby uses his lips almost from birth.

7th week—lips and tongue used for exploring.

7 to 8 weeks—head is held up or an attempt is made to do so.

8 to 9 weeks—back is stronger and straighter and he can look around when held up.

10 to 12 weeks—some effort is made to get body in sitting position.

20 to 24 weeks—may be sitting alone.

Begins Use for Hands and Feet

8 to 9 weeks—he touches his hands together.

9 to 10 weeks—voluntarily puts his hand to his mouth.

12 weeks—begins to such his thumb.

12 weeks—also feels objects with his hands without looking.

16 to 19 weeks—reaching and grasping developed awkwardly.

20 to 24 weeks—looks at objects before putting into his mouth.

26 weeks—picks up objects deliberately, often with one hand, and puts into mouth.

8 to 9 weeks—begins to push hard with his feet.

12 weeks—this pushing develops into jumping if he is supported.

14 weeks—"rhythmic" jumping develops on a sort of dance.

Sounds Begin to Have a Meaning

1 to 3 days—reaction to loud sound.

4 weeks—attention paid to distinct sounds.

7 weeks—child will often stop eating to listen to diverting noise.

7 weeks—he smiles in response to a voice and nodding head.

12 to 13 weeks—will turn to look for a sound.

15 to 17 weeks—experiments with making sounds himself.

21 weeks—laughs at quick noise such as clapping of hands.

First Signs of Emotions

1 to 6 weeks—cries and struggles if held too closely.

12 to 18 weeks—probably will show some fear on seeing strangers.

12 to 18 weeks—may cry and stiffen if he wants to sit up.

12 to 18 weeks—will laugh aloud if played with and ruffled gently.

Question Now comes the momentous question. When will Baby recognize you? The experts say that at twelve or thirteen weeks there is undoubted recognition of faces. I think it comes sometimes before that.

Don't worry if your baby does not fit to a pattern. Give him time. But it is interesting to know what to look for.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

Peter's Lesson in Humble Service

Text: John 13:1-17; 1 Peter 5:3 The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for January 20.

By Wm. E. Gilroy, D. D.

Editor's Advance

The simplest lessons apparently are the hardest to learn.

The world is full of people reaching up for the mastery of great things in life when they have not learned to master the little things. We are all wont to neglect the simplest duties and tasks at hand under the allurements of enjoyments and adventures for which we are not quite prepared.

The disciples had launched their faith with the Master on a great enterprise. They had shown themselves to be men of initiative and daring.

Their minds were filled with large schemes and plans, and in the slight glimpses that we have of their life

Sun Won't Gild This Lily

Lily Damita, vivacious French stage and movie star, is taking no chances with her complexion as she sojourns at Palm Springs, Calif., desert resort. Her hat has a wide brim of sun-proof material to protect eyes and skin from the glare of Old Sol, who can hardly be blamed for his warm attentions.

together, we have it made plain that they were not without worldly ambition or above discussing, even to the point of contention, which of them should be the greater.

It was under these conditions that Jesus had to train his disciples in understanding the simplest and deepest things that He exemplified in His own life and teaching. He represented a different order of values.

Greatness was not in place or distinction, greatness was in character, in love, in service. A man was mighty according to the things of grace and goodness that he was accomplishing.

The evidence of strength was not in the fact that one outdistanced his fellows or became greater in outward success or recognition. The measure of strength in this world that Jesus brought to men was the measure of what one accomplished for God in simple and loving service.

How was Jesus to teach such lessons to His disciples? When precept failed, He taught them by example; and here in our lesson we have the incident of His washing the disciples' feet.

Peter felt keenly the disgrace that the whom he loved and honored should thus stoop to such a lowly act. He protested when Jesus came to him, and then immediately, when he understood, he was anxious that the Lord should wash not only his feet, but his hands and his head.

Even here how much Peter was like the rest of us! So prone to learn a lesson badly, to get only the outer husk of the teaching and to miss the kernel of truth!

What could outward washing mean but the symbolizing of the washing of the heart, the purification of human pride and selfishness, the bringing of life to that plane of humility where one could learn, and where one could find a true relationship to his fellowman—a relationship not distorted by some falsity of one's own desires or attitude?

The example of Jesus was not only for His disciples, but for us. The greatest men have been men of humility, and where great men have not been humble, they have been giants of clay.

How can we build our lives nobly and truly except as we build upon a sound foundation? It is not in what we gain for ourselves, but in the enlargement of life and its true service, that we find the way of life as Jesus reveals it.

The humble man may learn and grow; the man who is self-willed and self-confident is proud against everything that may help him to become wiser, better, and greater.

Saar Is Formally Given to Germany

League of Nations Proclaims Transfer--"Atrocities" Stories Spiked

By the Associated Press
France and Germany Thursday agreed on conditions concerning transfer of the Saar from League of Nations administration to the Reich and the League Council promptly proclaimed its reannexation to Germany effective, March 1.
Approximately 600 refugees crossed the border into France, relating tales of Nazi persecutions and of the murder of two Communists at Neuenkirchen.

An Associated Press correspondent who reached Neuenkirchen early Friday found one of the "murdered" Communists walking around in bare feet and woolen underwear, and reported he was reasonably satisfied the other one said to be dead was equally alive.

About 100 terrified anti-Hitlerites were heard from in a French mine dormitory at Saarbach. A man named Lorenz was beaten and dragged to the police station.

A flight of French francs from the Saar led to estimates Germany would not be able to assemble more than half the $35,000,000 francs (about $5,575,000) she agreed to pay France for the Saar mines.

Germany accepted France's demand that she receive the Saar under the terms of the Versailles treaty, which demilitarized the border zone, and the League Council met immediately to proclaim the territory's formal transfer.

Belgian authorities took steps to repress agitators crying for the return to Germany of the Eupen and Malmédy cantons, annexed to Belgium under the Versailles treaty.

Simeon Stylites built a pillar 60 feet high and lived on it for 30 years without descending.

"One thing I will say emphatically: The property tax will not be raised for relief of any other purpose, unless it is done over vehement protest and without my support or signature. And under the new amendment, it will require a three-fourths vote to do that."

The governor pointed out that, under Administrator Hopkins' condition, the state and local governments would have to raise $912,722 more money for unemployment relief in 1935 than was contributed during almost two years previously.

Harve Thorn, speaker of the house, was aghast at the amount expected by the national administrator from Arkansas, and was even more perturbed at the implied threat that Arkansas would not share in federal unemployment grants unless the condition is met.

"The sales tax appears to be our only hope," he said.
He said he will bring the administrator's message to the attention of the house at the earliest possible moment and urge that serious consideration be given to the problem by the members.

A pay roll tax through which the employer would contribute for each of his workers amounts graduated upward every five years from one per cent during the five-year period beginning in 1937 to five per cent after 1957.

Half of the tax of the employer would be deducted from the pay of the employee thus insured.

The worker becomes eligible for the pension when he reaches 60 if taxes have been paid for at least 200 weeks in the five-year period and he is no longer working.

The amount of the pension received was divided into two scales to take care of those under pension plans before 1942 and those who come under them after that date.

For those in the first class, the pension would range upward from 15 per cent of his average monthly wage. If tax had been paid for him for 200 weeks, he would get the minimum. One per cent would be added for the next 40 weeks of tax, to apply for the next 200. Similarly, the pension would increase according to the length of time tax was paid.

For those in the second class, a similar system would be followed, except that the pension would begin at 10 per cent of his average wage.

ABOUT AUTOMATIC REFRIGERATORS

Before you buy - Not afterward

THAT ADVICE is not entirely unselfish. We have discovered that most folks who take the time to dig out the facts become Electrolux owners.

And it's not hard to see why. For, frankly, the New Air-Cooled Electrolux has them all beaten on the things that really count in automatic refrigeration.

Economical . . . silent

It costs less to run. Just figure what that means in money saved every day . . . every month . . . every year!

Electrolux has no moving parts to wear and need costly repairing. And that's another neat little saving!

It's permanently silent, too. That's not a financial saving, but it's something to consider pleasantly. So is this—Electrolux is backed and given prompt, willing service by your own gas company.

Every modern convenience

Those are big things. But Electrolux has not forgotten the "little" conveniences that make every woman's life more enjoyable. You can have almost any number of them you want—interior lighting . . . vegetable freshener . . . rubber ice-cube grid . . . split shelf . . . Newton spot-proof finish . . . temperature regulator for speeding the freezing of ice cubes and desserts . . . and plenty of others.

If you're even mildly interested in automatic refrigeration, please come in. We'll tell you everything we know. See the other refrigerators, too. Now is the time to begin learning about them. And the more you know, the nearer you are to owning an Electrolux—the modern gas refrigerator.

10 1/2 Million Bales Is Quota for 1935

Bankhead Law Figure Is Announced by Secretary Wallace

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Secretary Wallace Thursday fixed the Bankhead act quota for 1935 at 10,500,000 bales and told the staple's producers they could reduce their acreage 25 per cent this year.

The 10,500,000 bales represent cotton from this year's crop which may be sold tax-free under the Bankhead act. All above the allotment is to pay a levy of half its market value.

In addition to the quota Thursday are certificates remaining from 1934, each representing a tax-free bale.

The result—in bales of 478 pounds each—is around 11,700,000, although Secretary Wallace said he did not expect that all the leftover certificates would be used.

The new quota apparently represented a compromise between Senator Bankhead, Democrat, Alabama, who wanted the 1934 quota for 10,476,000 bales of 478 pounds net weight retained and the views of AAA officials.

They wanted to synchronize the Bankhead act with the voluntary program which originally aimed at the production of between 12,000,000 and 13,000,000 bales.

The largest cut in the normal acreage which could be ordered in 1935 was 25 per cent because of contracts signed in 1934 which covered 1935 also. But the secretary sometime ago said those participating in voluntary program might reduce as much as 30 per cent.

Funds to pay for the additional reduction were expected to be obtained through the appropriation of about $10,000,000 to pay costs of administering the Bankhead act for both 1934 and 1935 and an amendment to the agricultural adjustment act to permit continuance of processing taxes after the completion of reduction programs. This would permit the absorption of deficits.

Senator Bankhead, author of the Bankhead act, said the quota fixed "is better than the one they have been talking about" at the AAA.

LONG DENOUNCES

long arms swung gorilla fashion as he ranged over the floor inveighing against the Rockefeller, the Standard Oil Company, the international bankers and policies of President Roosevelt. He virtually emptied the senate floor for an hour or so but his colleagues, having business to present and not knowing when he would stop, had to come back and wait.

Delays President's Message

Long didn't even stop for the reading of President Roosevelt's message on social security until Majority Leader Joe T. Robinson asked him to yield for that purpose. A message from the president is expected to have the right of way over everything else in the senate, but Long paused only while the messenger announced its arrival. Then he resumed and went on for five minutes, until Robinson stopped him.

Long put Senator Tom Connally of Texas and Senator Robinson, both ardent supporters of the World Court, on the spot as he heaped the load of his talk and loaded Robinson until the latter was white with rage. Both senators being absent, Long sent for them and then read accounts of interviews they gave out upon returning from a trip to Europe last summer. He asked the senators whether they had told of "war clouds hanging over Europe" and said an upheaval was imminent.

Robinson Replies

Informed of the substantial correctness of these accounts, Long continued:

"That being the case, I am unable to fathom in my mind why the senators want us to hurry up and get in the World Court before the war starts."

"There are a lot of things the senator from Louisiana couldn't fathom in his mind," Robinson shot back. "If the United States can assist in the composition of disputes by peaceful methods it is our duty to do so."

Long read from the Democratic platform favoring adherence to the World Court subject to the pending reservations, upholding the sanctity of treaties and supporting the payment of international obligations. He said the European countries had broken their treaties and defaulted in $11,000,000,000 of war debts which the United States ought to make them pay before going into the World Court.

Questioned by Robinson

"Does the senator imply that we ought to go to war to collect those war debts?" Robinson asked.

"No," said Long.

"Then what would you do," Robinson demanded.

"I'd stay out of the World Court," said Long.

Long wound up by giving an exposition of the Darwinian theory and his own theory of the "missing link" to the great amusement of both senators and gallery spectators.

"We've been trying to find the missing link," he said. "We thought if we could find the highest intellect among the animals and the lowest intellect of man why that would be pretty close to the missing link. But it's the other way around. The lowest animal intellect known is higher than the highest of mankind if we go into this World Court. An elephant, a pole cat, even a hyena would have more sense than that."

STATE MODIFIES

toward the matter was summed up by a letter written to a local agent by his home office, saying:

"It is unfortunate that these circumstances exist, but if surety companies are to take care of the requirements of public officials in the various states they should be given a better break in order that they may write the business with more freedom. Our decision outlined is no reflection on Mr. Page who, we believe, will make a very good state treasurer. The emergency measure now pending clears the situation partially, as regards the state treasurer, but does not make it any easier for county officials to obtain surety bonds.

It is considered likely that county and state officials will urge enactment of additional legislation that would clarify the situation still further and remove the need for personal bonds which so often have proved valueless.

Three of the world's most famous diamonds, the Kohinoor, Great Mogul, and Shah, were owned by Shah Jehan, builder of the Taj Mahal.

NEIGHBOR DECLARES

prison superintendent, trial judge, prosecuting attorney, the sheriff, a majority of the jurors or 500 legal voters had recommended clemency. Persons who previously had served a term in the state prison would not be eligible for parole.

A bill similar to one introduced at the last session, but which was defeated, made its appearance. It was by Buerkle of Arkansas county, and provides that gasoline used for agricultural purposes shall be tax exempt. The bill specifies that such gasoline shall be black to distinguish it from other gasoline.

Endorse Racing Bill

The new racing bill—the third offered during the session—was said to have been sanctioned by the Hot Springs business men's organization which sponsored the races there last year. It was introduced by Campbell and Maner, both of Garland county.

It differs only slightly from the other racing measures. The commission, which would have supervision over races would be composed of three persons appointed by the governor. The revenues, after expenses of the commission have been deducted, would be credited to the State Hospital and Tuberculosis Sanatorium funds.

Out of a total of 109 bills introduced thus far in the session, only one has been passed—a bill by Boulware of Lafayette which, it was explained, would enable Earl Page, state treasurer, to furnish the required surety bond of $200,000. It provides that state funds shall be placed in banks which guarantee deposits up to $5,000, and that the two per cent interest, required heretofore, shall not be demanded.

toward the matter was summed up by a letter written to a local agent by his home office, saying:

"It is unfortunate that these circumstances exist, but if surety companies are to take care of the requirements of public officials in the various states they should be given a better break in order that they may write the business with more freedom. Our decision outlined is no reflection on Mr. Page who, we believe, will make a very good state treasurer. The emergency measure now pending clears the situation partially, as regards the state treasurer, but does not make it any easier for county officials to obtain surety bonds.

It is considered likely that county and state officials will urge enactment of additional legislation that would clarify the situation still further and remove the need for personal bonds which so often have proved valueless.
